

have deep respect, the gentleman from California [Mr. DELLUMS], may call for a revote on an issue that was decided the night before last. If indeed this happens, I would hope that my colleagues stand firm to the position that we had the night before last, and that is, it deals with an issue as to whether or not if Russia transfers a weapon that it designed during the cold war, a missile designed specifically to kill American sailors and to sink American ships, whether or not we should continue to pump $200 million a year into a fund for a program that we are involved in with the Russians, by the way a program that has a billion-dollar backlog right now.

I would hope that my colleagues think very closely on this issue. The gentleman from California [Mr. DELLUMS] is a very serious man and sincere, concerned about peace, I have no doubt about that, and concerned about his country.

I have a disagreement with him on this issue. I think our colleagues will say it is a good way to send a message to the Russians not to send high technology weapons designed during the cold war to countries that would kill Americans, and I would hope they revote the way they did the night before last.

MIGHTY JAZZ DEFEATED BY THE MIGHTIER BULLS

(Mr. COOK asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. COOK. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. JACKSON].

Mr. JACKSON of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, we are not worthy, we are not worthy, we are truly not worthy.

I was approached during the NBA championship series by my colleague from Utah, Mr. COOK, and Mr. COOK made a friendly wager, that if the Chicago Bulls had won the championship, that he would indeed wear a Chicago Bulls hat for the remainder of a day.

"I have missed more than 9,000 shots in my career," a Bull once said; "I've almost lost 300 games, 26 times I have been trusted to take the game-winning shot and missed."

Character, Mr. Speaker, character speaks for both the Utah Jazz and the Chicago Bulls, of whom we are both extremely proud.

I want to express our condolences once again to Shannon Anderson and his family, and to all of the Utah Jazz that played with such character, with such determination, we look forward to beating the Utah Jazz for a sixth time.

Mr. COOK. Mr. Speaker, we certainly look forward to a repeat performance, and I think the result is going to be a little bit different.

I am here today to honor the promise. My team, the mighty Jazz, was defeated in the NBA finals by the mighty Bulls, and let me just make the statement as I promised the gentleman from Illinois. I did not say I would go that far.

I had a busy week, and I asked my chief of staff to help me with this piece, but it turns out she is not a sports fan. Now, as a Utah woman, she knows two names in basketball: Stocton and Malone; actually in Utah it is Stocton to Malone, and that is just one word.

Now I told her that there is a man out there named Michael Jordan. It is not Michael Jackson, Michael Jordan; and he is a very fine player, particularly when he has the flu. If it were not for this man, I told her, the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. JACKSON] would be standing here today in a Jazz cap. "One ball player can't be that important," she said. My staff is chipping in to send her to a Bulls game the next season. In the meantime perhaps I could use this cutout as a visual aid to explain the wonder of Michael.

To Mr. Jordan, the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. JACKSON] and to all the Bulls team, congratulations on an outstanding playoff series, and we will definitely see them next year.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Wicker). The time of the gentlemen from Utah [Mr. COOK] and from Illinois, [Mr. JACKSON], has long since expired and in this instance the Chair has granted great leeway and reminds Members that it is a violation of the House rules to wear hats on the floor of the House.

NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 1998

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 169 and rule XXIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 1119.

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 1119) to authorize appropriations for fiscal years 1998 and 1999 for military personnel strengths for fiscal years 1998 and 1999, and for other purposes, with Mr. YOUNG of Florida in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. When the Committee of the Whole rose on Tuesday, June 24, 1997, amendment No. 8 printed in part 1 of House Report 105-137 by the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. BUYER] had been disposed of.

There being no further amendments in order, the question is on the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute, as amended.

The committee amendment in the nature of a substitute, as amended, was agreed to.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I want to take this opportunity to commend Chairman SPENCE and the other members of the National Security Committee for their efforts in drafting a defense bill that funds our national security priorities with limited resources. It is a balancing act that has become even more difficult as a result of the present administration that asks our men and women in uniform to do more around the world while subsequently giving them less resources. In fact, today, our troops are stationed in nearly 100 nations and the world, more than ever before. Yet, we are spending three times less on defense as a percentage of our national economy than when John F. Kennedy was President in 1963.

The defense bill Chairman SPENCE has crafted uses the resources available to focus on improving the quality of life for our troops and their families. The bill improves force readiness and modernizes aging equipment. Furthermore, Chairman WELDON and the members of the Research and Development Subcommittee have provided resources to continue the invaluable research and development efforts for the weapons systems that give our troops an overwhelming edge on the battlefield. We should never put our service men and women in harm's way with anything less than overpowering force and the most advanced technology available.

I would be remiss, however, if I did not add that I remain concerned about the effect declining defense budgets are having on our ability to recruit and retain new engineers and scientists who design, maintain, and upgrade our weapon's systems. Picatinny Arsenal, located in my congressional district, is home to many of our Nation's best and brightest weapons engineers. The men and women of Picatinny Arsenal design warheads for the Patriot missile, the 155mm howitzer for the Army's revolutionary Crusader artillery system and improvements to the gun turret of the Comanche helicopter, as well as developing the weapons of the future for our troops on the frontlines. If the knowledge that exists at Picatinny and similar facilities within the Department of Defense is not passed on to new engineers and scientists, it will be lost forever. This knowledge cannot be replicated or replaced. We can only retain it and maintain it by continuing to recruit bright young men and women and by giving them the resources to continue their critical work.

Again, I want to commend Chairman SPENCE and the other members of the House National Security Committee for their work on this bill.

Mr. SAXTON. Mr. Chairman, I have a non-controversial amendment to title 29 of the bill dealing with wildlife conservation on military lands or, as it is better known, the Sikes Act.

During the past 3 years, my Subcommittee on Fisheries Conservation, Wildlife and Oceans conducted two hearings on the Sikes Act and the House, on two separate occasions during the 104th Congress, approved legislation to extend this landmark statute.

Regrettably, this legislation did not become law and the Department of Defense [DOD], the Department of the Interior [DOI], and the International Association of Fish and Wildlife
